KLJB demands: 100 percent renewable

One of KLJB “hot topics” is energy policy and supply

At their annual meeting in spring 2013, the German Catholic Rural Movement (KLJB) passed a resolution concerning the energy supply of the future. Their vision for the year 2050: An energy supply completely based on renewable energies. The paper describes standards for the production, storage, transport and consumption of energy. In their vision, photovoltaic, geothermic, wind and water power as well as biomass will completely provide the energy supply of the future. Hence, nuclear power plants and fossil fuels will become obsolete. Read more here
